

OUR MISSION

to build a better society for our progeny. We hope to instill the necessary values, a great nation ought to be, most especially children and young adults who mark up conversations in various quarters by organising in order to engage our people, children and young people in developing Africa. Small things when neglected crumble and may seem insignificant but they are the causative factors in a developed society. We also sensitize through our writings our doctors, lawyers, teachers, nurses, engineers, scientists, researchers, journalists, police, military, servants, bankers, artisans (bricklayers, carpenters, masons, artists), industrialists, actors, musicians etc that their participation are great and essential to the society and that they should live out the required values and ethics inherent in their professions. We create a healthy and developed community of people who are living up to their full potentials.

OUR VISION

There are certain operative values instrumental to their growth. They value hard work, truth, cleanliness and so on. They have a serious working population, a working justice system and a working education system respectively amongst others. Obviously, the African continent lacks the values which result to dereliction to duty, injustice and corruption. The basic agent of nation building is not the government but the people. The duty of the government is simply to provide what they really need to work with. If Africa has the values of positive hard work and excellence and shuns corruption, our growth will be at a geometric progression. We have an efficient justice system, education system, health system, political system, health system and so on. If we can rule the world. Let all hands be on deck.

Recreating Values is an activity of great minds that is channeled towards the transformation of Africa from a third world continent to a first world continent through the recreation of lost societal values which are fundamental to the cause of any nation building. Values are treasures that a people hold dear and by recreating these values, we hope to refresh and enliven them again in the African space so as to evoke a renewed interest and vigor in observing and practising them.

IF WE VALUE... We will have...
LIFE- good hospitals, good insurance schemes, dedicated doctors and nurses.
TRUTH- fairness, patriotic spirits and no corruption.
JUSTICE- good legal system and have our human rights protected.
HARD WORK-no shortcut to success, no craze for quick wealth, no cyber thieves, no mediocrity but dedication to our duty and excellence.
CLEAN ENVIRONMENT-good refuse disposal, clean drainage and recycle wastes.
LOVE- good families, good society and good people.
AGRICULTURE- abundant food and no hunger.
STANDARD PRODUCTS- no fake drugs and no fake products.
RELIABILITY AND TRANSPARENCY- good reputation and trust for one another.
COMMITMENT TO OUR DUTY- great and formidable nation.
THE POOR- a good housing system and good transportation system with subsidies.
PROPER EDUCATION- good schools with ingenious inventions and discoveries.
NATION BUILDING-good roads, employment, constant power supply, industries etc.

OUR MISSION

In recreating values, we build a better society for our progeny. We hope to achieve this through inculcating the necessary values, a great nation ought to have into the African peoples, most especially children and young adults who are still malleable. We also spark up conversations in various quarters by organising talks, symposia and debates in order to engage our people, children and young adults, in discussions on developing Africa. Small things when neglected crumble bigger things. These values may seem insignificant but they are the causative agents of change in any developed society. We also sensitize through our writings and community outreach, our doctors, lawyers, teachers, nurses, engineers, priests, pastors, farmers, traders, scientists, researchers, journalists, police, military, politicians, authors, civil servants, bankers, artisans (bricklayers, carpenters, plumbers, electricians, painters, artists),industrialists, actors, musicians etc that their profession, job or occupation are great and essential to the society and that they should practice and live out the required values and ethics inherent in their profession in order to create a healthy and developed community of dignified ladies and gentlemen who are living up to their full potentials.

OUR VISION

In developed climes, there are certain operative values instrumental to their development. For example, they value hard work, truth, cleanliness and so on. As a result of this, they have a serious working population, a working justice system and clean environments respectively amongst others. Obviously, the African nations are deficient in these values which result to dereliction to duty, injustice and often squalid environments. The basic agent of nation building is not the government but the citizens, the people. The duty of the government is simply to provide for the citizens what they really need to work with. If Africa imbibes the core societal values of positive hard work and excellence and shuns mediocrity and quick money, our growth will be at a geometric progression. Our different systems will be efficient- the justice system, education system, economic system, political system, health system and so on. Africans are intelligent and we can rule the world. Let all hands be on deck. So, help us God.
